IVV Credit Only Event

Eligible for the Walking Europe in the US, Native American Culture, Firehouses, Veteran Memorials, and Railroad Heritage Programs

LOCATION: The Borough of Burnham is about 63 miles from Harrisburg and close to Lewistown. It is named for a town in England. It is home to the Standard Steel Company (formerly Freedom Forge) which has been making iron and steel products since 1795 and is likely the oldest continuously operating forging company in America. Standard Steel has served the railway industry since its inception. In 1904 the company produced the first solid forged and rolled wheel in the United States. The Juniata Valley RR (established in 1895 as the Mifflin and Centre County RR) services the Standard Steel Corp. from the mainline of Norfolk Southern which passes through Lewistown. The Juniata Valley RR is an affiliate of the North Shore Railroad System. www.standardsteel.com/main The Kishacoquillas Creek (2nd Loop) is named for Chief Kishacoquillas a Shawnee Chief whose tribe occupied the area in the 1700s.
